A Visit to Capital Medical University from RWTH Aachen

From September 21 to October 25, 2013, Ms. Jing Yu, a scientific staff from Department of Medical Informatics, Uniklinik Rheinisch-Westfälische Technische Hochschule Aachen (RWTH-Aachen), Germany, visited Capital Medical University. Amusingly, She was also an Alumnus of Capital Medical University graduated in 2010.

the future potential possibilities of collaborative projects. In return, Ms. Yu presented to the Chinese researchers the new European Union funded Project RASimAs, which is about to be launched in November 2013 and coordinated by RWTH Aachen.

Ms. Yu was warmly welcome by Professor Shuqian Luo's team. During her stay in China, she had interesting conversations with teachers and students about their current works and past projects. For example, PhD candidate Jun Li, researchers Dr. Lu Zhang, and Dr. Liting Wang presented their work on the methods and results on images of animal experiments. They also had a detailed discussion on

Ms. Yu also met Mr. Alessandro Diaco, who comes from the University of Pisa as a visiting scientist and is also funded by the project WIDTH. They have formed very informative communications about their scientific working too.

The visit was a meaningful journey for Ms. Yu and she also enjoyed the re-visit of her Alma mater.

Visiting General Navy Hospital from Middlesex University

In December 2014, during his trip to Beijing, Prof. Richard Bayford from the UK visited General Navy Hospital in Beijing, China. Richard specialises in the field of brain EEG (Electroencephalogram), which overlaps to a large extent with the research work on neurosurgery carried out in the hospital. As a result, they had very in-depth discussion with regard to both current and future collaborations.
